

Anger? Depression? You're not Alone

Honest Fury by J.J. Johnson 05.24.01

I was wondering why I was so depressed today, but I realized it was less of a depression and more of an anger. The reason: Traitors in our midst. The traitor in question is one Senator James Jeffords of Vermont. I should be mad at the Democrats. But punishment should go to the GOP.

I'm not going to take the conventional wisdom angle by saying the 'current' Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott should have 'coddled' Mr. Jeffords more. I say he should have thrown the bum out long ago!

And while we're at it, there are a few more leftist ('moderate' makes me puke) 'Republican' Senators who can quit sucking on Republican campaign contributions while wearing their Maoist Uniforms. Most of them are in the New England area - there must be something in the water there when it comes to political thought.

And, lest we forget, one Sellout from the state of Arizona. This may sound offensive, but I liked him better at the Hanoi Hilton - less damage to my personal freedom.

The GOP needs to sit down, lay off the fund raisers, find a spine, and stop blindly backing Republicans just because they are an incumbent. If they call themselves "moderate" and vote accordingly, then they should be IGNORED - since it's illegal to shoot them.

My suggestion to local GOP offices and the National RNC would be to start backing 'conservative' challengers to these leftists in the PRIMARIES. If you're gonna be a RINO (Republican in name only), then to hell with you. Go sit on Hillary's lap.

I swear, if there isn't a better reason to repeal the 17th Amendment, I can't think of one.

But while you Democrats reading this are snickering, we on the right have a few things to say to you:

Congratulations. Since you couldn't steal the presidency, you've stolen the senate instead. As a reward, we now have even less concern as your fellow commies in California BAKE over the summer from lack of electricity. Conservatives who run power companies should RAISE the rates ever higher, and call it "fairness". Yes, you leftists need more rolling blackouts - for longer periods of time.

(Real Californians not included - Nevada welcomes you in open arms)

Why stop at $3.00 a gallon - do I hear $5.00?

We don't care if Alaska is now turned into Swiss Cheese.

We don't care about funding your schools anymore so one of your Prozac enhanced, victim-of-sensitivity-training kids can go on another shooting rampage. If you can't handle less education money - QUIT!

We don't care how much you pay for prescription drugs anymore. We'll get ours elsewhere - let your Big Pharmaceutical companies send you to the poor house for all we care. You're not getting any more of our money.

The money we would have spent on GOP campaigns should go to buying more guns, ammo, cigarettes (even if we don't smoke) until they get a clue.

Since your side likes to spike trees for the hell of it, I would LOVE to see folks just start cutting down Redwoods, hunting spotted owls, fishing for Bull Trout, and making sure ANYTHING on the Endangered Species List become even MORE endangered.

And don't be surprised if illegal immigrants just start getting SHOT crossing the border and dropped off at the doorstep of some liberal's house.

We don't care anymore. That's what they want, don't they?

Do I sound angry? Mean-spirited? Good.

You see, Real America: It took this attitude to prevent these "enemies of the republic" from stealing the election in Florida. But since President "Can't-we-all-get-along" has gotten there, someone has told him that 'appeasement' with National Socialists was acceptable.

Well, we've learned that lesson once again.

From this point, Democrats should be given no quarter among us - zero. We don't watch their crap anymore from Hollywood, we don't want them in our homes, anywhere near our children, and out of our lives period. Let the Secession begin - not by states of the Union, but by state of mind. These people are the enemy, and should be dealt with as such.

As for politics, the momentum should begin for the 2002 elections with a national slogan: "MODERATES NEED NOT APPLY"

No, I'm not happy with just a damn tax cut. I WANNA GOVERNMENT CUT! I want my country BACK. I don't wanna pay UN DUES for any reason. I want my land back. I want my water rights back. I want my Constitution back. Is there any way you folks in Washington DC will understand this without a shot being fired?

Yes, we should be mad about this. Yes, we should get that attitude back. Let them know that what they called "mean-spirited" is what we call "just being an American". I submit that conservatives across the nation send a strong message to Washington - to each Congressman and Senator saying:

"No Compromise; No Surrender. These lying bastards wanna war? - let's party."

First we cut loose the DEAD WEIGHT 'MODERATES' in the GOP, then show Hillary and Co. what a Vast Right Wing Conspiracy really is.

I'd better stop before I start cleaning my rifle again. Excuse me while I grab some oxygen.
